

Data Collection Made Easy!

Formopia is a data management tool that makes the collection of information easy.

Data is collected through online web-based forms which are designed with ease using Formopia's Form Designer. A master list of users that will be providing data can be maintained within Formopia. Users can be organized into groups. Users are notified of the online data collection form and provide their data by filling it in. The status of the data collection effort is transparent during the entire process. Data collection notifications can be scheduled ahead of time. Collected data is automatically stored in a structured database that can be used to run a variety of reports.

Data can be exported to files of various formats or seamlessly fed into third party applications. Formopia includes several features such as single sign-on, directory integration, address book with contacts and groups, scheduling, monitoring, alerts and notifications. All of this functionality comes in an easy to use interface that requires no software downloads or installation, setup or maintenance.

Fully flexible plans exist for a variety of users and for organizations of all sizes. The basic version of Formopia is free to all users. This is a no cost option to get started and you can upgrade when necessary. Custom solutions are available for organizations that need to integrate Formopia with their IT infrastructure.
